

Mike Finkle

John Henry, Mighty Steel Driving Man (cont.)

- Salesman: The contest is not over until the hour is up.
- Foreman: Look! He has driven into the rock farther than the machine.
- The Crowd: Man wins against machine! Man wins against machine!
- Narrator 1: The exhausted John Henry slumped down on the pile of rock around his feet.
- Narrator 2: The giant of a man lived up to his vow; he would drive a steel drill deeper into the rock than any machine could "even if I have to die with a hammer in my hand."
- Narrator 1: Man wins against machine! The giant of a man died with his hammer in his hand.

Davy Crockett